

Comments received via <http://www.seattle.gov/municipaljail/questions.htm>
for December 31, 2008

Name: David Grant

City: Bellevue

New jail should be multiple stories, not a single level.

Name: John Knapp

City: Seattle

Seattle Neighborhood: Queen Anne

Please do not choose the Interbay site. It is literally one block from a neighborhood full of families. I am very concerned about the safety of my toddler son if people who have been released from the jail start wandering up the hill and around the neighborhood. Thanks.

Name: Scott Smith

City: Bellevue

I haven't been actively involved in watching this issue until I saw it on your site this morning. I generally am not a fan of putting the jail in the middle of downtown Bellevue. While I can appreciate the convenience and benefit of being near City Hall, I think it has an overall negative impact on our city. Bellevue has done a great job of building an image as a sought after small city to live and work in and I feel we've been very focused on maintaining that image. Having the jail right off the main corridor where people enter our city, would change that image.

I believe there are likely other areas that may not be as convenient but would make more sense:

- Bel-Red corridor
- Area just north of Factoria and I-90 (don't know the name)
- Eastgate

I'm sure there are others, but these come to mind first.

thx

--Scott